When Stacy Andreas and Lambert (Bert) Macy met at the Saddle & Sirloin Club in Kansas City, the evening became much more than just a fun night dancing to country music. Stacy (a 42-year-old attorney) was attending a party at the club where Bert (a 58-year-old retired business owner) was a member. After Bert introduced himself and the two began to talk, he asked Stacy for a dance. They were so interested in each other during their first dance together that the country music became an afterthought. "We wish we could remember the song," Stacy says. "It was love at first sight for both of us." The couple was the last to leave the party that night and wasted no time seeing each other again—they went on their first official date the next day. After a year and a half of dating, Bert proposed to Stacy at their vacation house at the Lake of the Ozarks, and the couple hosted an intimate, rustic wedding six months later. —Miles Stiverson
